Man Charged With Mercy Slaying Of "Wife"

-SNS Photo

Ralph Kilbon was charged in Cobourg with the "mercy slaying" of his wife. Slumped in rocking chair at right, body of Mrs. Kilbon was found in kitchen. Weapon is on table and magazine she was reading is beside it. Mrs. Harold Death of Lakefield, Ont., niece of the accused man, refuses to believe her uncle shot Mrs. Kilbon, declared the couple were devoted to each other. "Ralph would never hurt her. He loved her," she declared.

CHIEF SPINKS ANSWERS QUESTIONS

by Chief Spinks of LaSalle
Q. IS IT PROPER TO DRIVE AFTER JUST ONE OR TWO LITTLE DRINKS?

. . . Not half enough emphasis is laid on preventing exhilarated, though far from drunken drivers from operating their cars. Their condition may cause them to take chances they would not think of taking when they have had nothing to drink. Can they adequately meet the many sudden traffic emergencies that arise? It is unnecessary to emphasize the menace of drunken drivers; certainly there is nothing to be said in their defense nor would good citizens want them to escape the full penalty of the law. Drunk drivers are the highway's deadliest menace. Drunk driving is heinous—criminal, but what many persons fail to realize is that the driver who may be classified as exhilarated also can be guilty of grave offenses. Nobody is immune to the effect of alcohol. Why then will any sane person drive while thus handicapped? It is a social obligation to keep inebriated persons out of the driver's seat

Q. ARE RUDE DRIVERS ALWAYS RUDE PERSONS ELSEWHERE?

A. The point to made—because so hard to understand—is that rude drivers often are, under other circumstances, perfectly well-behaved people. The man who tries to force his way ahead in a line of cars often would not think of trying to force himself ahead of others in a box office queue nor would he shove a fellow pedestrian off a sidewalk. If he accidentally did such a thing he probably would be mortified by his own rudeness. But, in his car, he is quite likely to swear roundly at his victim for getting in his way. Genuine manners are part of every gentleman—and lady—and are not removable.

CODE OF COURTESY

Bad motoring manners can be murder. Just plain simple courtesy and consideration for others at all times will make the use of streets and highways safer, more efficient and more pleasurable. Here is a "Code of Courtesy" that can be followed by all would be well-mannered drivers and pedestrians.

1 A well-mannered driver will share the road, never usurping the right-of-way from other vehicles or pedestrians.

2 A well-behaved driver uses his horn as a warning device in emergencies and never as a bad-tempered voice to threaten or scold.

3 An honorable man or woman would no more cheat traffic regulations than cheat at games or in sports.

4 Courteous pedestrians will cross busy streets at intersection respect traffic lights and avoid darting out from behind parked vehicles.

5 An obliging driver will never fail to dim his lights when meeting other cars in the dark.

6 Well-bred people whether drivers or passengers, are just as considerate of each other as are hosts and guests in a drawing room.

7 An accommodating driver parks his car so as not to interfere with the use of other parking spaces or with the movement of other vehicles.

8 Orderly drivers always keep to the right, except when using the proper lane for turning or passing.

9 A courteous driver never fails to signal his intentions to stop, turn or pull out.

10 Considerate persons always drive at speeds which are reasonable and prudent, considering traffic, road and weather conditions.

11 One who has any consideration for the safety of others will refrain from driving when physically exhausted.

12 Kindly persons never show curiosity at the scene of an accident and always give any assistance that may be possible.

New car of Joe Reddick, 12, paralyzed from waist down, is a "Chad," built especially for him by Harry Chad and Cal Davey of the Reliance garage in Talbotville, Ont. Civic employees and friends of the London, Ont., boy financed its construction.

DIGEST.

Remember when digests and condensations first mushroomed on magazine stands? It looked as though the day of man-sized magazine was on the way out for those dehydrated handfuls of pre-digested reading. There were many of us who then laconically joked of "digests of the digests." Now I can resist the urge no longer. Here is a striking story digested from the "Catholic Digest."

You rarely see Fr. Edmund Doyle in a Roman collar and black suit. But he is a familiar figure in slacks and a T-shirt. The people with whom he works have more respect for him in that outfit than they would if he dressed like a cleric. Father Doyle runs the Catholic Welfare Bureau in the gambling hell of Reno. There his work is to help those who are apparently beyond help. The ways of reclaiming souls are always devious and even Fr. Doyle's knowledge of pool helps.

Last year about Christmas time, a murderer soon to be executed in Nevada penitentiary called his prison doctors.

"Listen," he said, "they tell me there's a young priest in Reno who's doing pretty good for folks who are down and out. Someone says he's going blind. I been thinkin' I won't have much use for these anymore, so if you guys wanna operate on my eyes. . . ."

The surgery was successful.
